

Zebra Heliconian

The Zebra Heliconian, often called the Zebra Longwing, is the Florida State Butterfly. It needs Passiflora vines to raise a family, so Passiflora vines are called the Host Plant of this butterfly.

In the image below it is sipping nectar from a Firebush flower, so Firebush is a Nectar Plant for this butterfly.

Created By Stephanie Sanchez

<http://butterflies.heuristron.net>

You may print a copy for your child to color. For any other use, please email me for permission:

steph@mail.heuristron.net